CLERGY CORNER

The following is from a Discourse Against the Pagans by Saint Athanasius, bishop:

He is God, the living and creative God of the universe, the Word of the good God, who is God in his own right. The Word is different from all created things: he is the unique Word belonging only to the good Father. This is the Word that created this whole world and enlightens it by his loving wisdom. He who is the good Word of the good Father produced the order in all creation, joining opposites together, and forming from them one harmonious sound. He is God, one and only-begotten, who proceeds in goodness from the Father as from the fountain of goodness, and gives order, direction and unity to creation.

By his eternal Word the Father created all things and implanted a nature in his creatures. He did not want to see them tossed about at the mercy of their own natures, and so be reduced to nothingness. But in his goodness, he governs and sustains the whole of nature by his Word... so that under the guidance, providence and ordering of that Word, the whole of nature might remain stable and coherent in his light... For whatever exists, whether visible or invisible, remains in existence through him and in him, and he is also the head of the Church, as we are taught by the ministers of truth in their sacred writings. (Nn.40-42: PG 25, 79-83)

In Christ's peace,

Father Robby
